Signs of spring are being seen throughout Casey County. With recent warmer temperatures, Casey County is alive with blooming trees and flowers. Many Casey Countians are beginning their yard work and landscaping as evidenced by these sights found from across the community. Meth lab discovered in Liberty

By Larry Rowell Staff Writer

Due in part to a tip from a vigilant citizen, law enforcement officers found an active methamphetamine lab in the woods off Water Tower Road Monday afternoon.

"I got a tip from a citizen who noticed some suspicious activity up here," said Deputy Dennis Allen.

Chief Steven Garrett said that this is beginning to be a typical routine on the part of meth They leave the labs out in es citizens who see suspicious activity near wooded areas to contact law enforcement. Officers located a red duffel bag about 30 feet on the other side of the guardrail that borders the steep road up to the city's newest water tank.

"We found three, one-step labs in large bottles that were just about finished cooking," Allen said. An officer donned a haz-mat suit and used materials to defuse the labs, making them safe to transport and destroy. Allen estimated the value of the drugs at $400.

The street was blocked for about an hour and the lab posed no serious threat to area homeowners. Liberty Fire Department firefighters and Liberty Police officers assisted at the County audit suggests changes

A yearly audit found the Casey County Fiscal Court "in conformity" - with some

In a report released last week, Kentucky State Auditor Adam Edelen cited several issues for the court to consider.

An audit for the fiscal year ending June 30, 2012 suggested improvements in payroll, purchase procedures, and record keeping. The annual report also recommended an 'update" of county administrative code to address "personnel and payroll including compensated absences, procurement procedures, and new policies and procedures.

In reviewing county payroll, the auditor's office found "numerous personnel files did not include all necessary information such as position held, hire date and rate of pay,' According to the report, "three out of 15 employees...did not prepare a time sheet," and "five time sheet/time cards were not signed by their immediate supervisor." The report recommends "a periodic review of compensated absences to ensure employees are not being paid for time not earned." The audit claims the county's administrative code — which is to be reviewed annuthings differently." The judge said he feels the county "has a pretty good system going," and proper accountability is in place. 'Overall, we're pleased," he said. "Hey, there's no money missing, and we've got a

Fiscal court considering $8.4M budget for FY 2013-14

By Wade Daffron Staff Writer

The Casey County Fiscal Court has until July 1 to approve a just over $8.4 million budget for the upcoming year.

At the April 15 meeting of the Casey County Fiscal Court, Judge/Executive Ronald Wright presented a proposed budget to the county's four magistrates.

"This is something we have to do by law," he said. "I'm presenting it to you to Wright encouraged the magistrates to take the budget home and look it over." The court has until July 1 to make any changes and adopt the budget.

The budget for Fiscal Year (FY) 2012-13 was $7.8 million.

The proposed budget includes slightly over $3 million for the general fund, $1.7 million for the road fund, $97,600 in Local Government Economic Assistance (LGEA) funds, over $305,000 for E-911, a state grant totaling $3,000, and approximately $3.2 million for the jail.

Wright said a budget for the Casey County Detention Center had been submitted by Jailer Tommy Miller.

Fussbudget

The latest audit of the Casey County Fiscal Court has just been released.

And it's horrible – or great – or scandalous – or un-

For you see, it's a matter of interpretation.

One can review the audit to see how the county

A good portion of that money is your hard-earned

You can bet those dollars we keep a close eye on things and will let you know if there's anything suspicious.

It is important to note there's nothing in the audit to indicate malfeasance - which is a big, ugly word meaning somebody's doing something they shouldn't.

But practically every audit has "comments" – which are observations auditors make during the course of their review of county finances.

If one reads certain comments – especially out of context - there may be a few "oohs" and "aahs," or 'What's this mean?", "What's that mean?

Some things may sound gossip-worthy if you take them at face value. There are items mentioned which are simple, procedural issues which can be easily rectified, and there are things that may merit a closer look.

The old saying goes, "The numbers don't lie," and there's some B-I-G numbers involved in running county government.

That's why it's essential to have audits.

It's about accountability and responsibility. Because our elected officials just don't have to answer to someone in Frankfort, they have to answer to YOU, the voters who put them in office.

Trivia and tunes

I was walking through the newspaper office the other day when I heard the following...

"You take wheat and soiled underwear," General Manager/Advertising Director Brittany Emerson

Stopping in my tracks so fast my shoes squeaked like squealing tires, I stuck my head inside her office Oddly enough, I knew exactly what she was talking about.

Brittany was discussing "spontaneous generation" with Ken Neilson, with Ken Neilson, the gentleman who delivers and distributes The Casey County News. (And as I was told on my first day here, he really is the nicest person you'll ever meet.)

She continued telling Ken about the obscure theory.

Although long ago discredited, spontaneous generation – also known as abiogenesis – is basically the belief living things can be produced from inanimate objects.

Brittany quoted 17th century physician J.B. Van Helmont, who believed if one placed sweat-soiled underwear and wheat inside an open jar for 21 days, mice would form from the ferment.

For a gross example, it was once theorized maggots were created by rotting meat.

I once took a bunch of socks, soaked them in vinegar, stuffed them in a shoe box and left them in my bedroom closet for several weeks - hoping to make my own pet squirrel.

To this day, my feet smell like Long John Silver's.

I was totally amazed and impressed someone else knew about spontaneous generation.

I can't tell you what day it is, what time it is, and sometimes don't know my name. It's got a couple of vowels in it, I think. But I can tell you who the Beatles' first drummer was. Easy! Pete Best, met him and got his autograph! I am aware of how Neil Young got his trade-mark guitar, "Old Black." In a trade with Jim Messina – yeah, that Jim Messina - of Loggins & Messina. And no, my mama don't dance. And for some reason, I know what guitar Elvis played on his last tour. A Martin D-28. He had been using a D-35, but dropped it at a Valentine's Day show when the strap broke. Ouch!

In other words, I'm a sucker for obscure information and bizarre trivia.

And yeah, I'm kind of music nut, too.

Imagine my surprise and delight during my first visit to the courthouse when I saw a guitar and fiddle we don't call them violins around here - in Sheriff Jerry Coffman's office, learned Judge/Executive Ronald Wright can pretty much play anything with strings, and then discovered John McQueary over at the Judicial Center is always eager to pick a tune!

Man, I must be in Heav-

Help to spay/neuter clinic appreciated

Our low cost spay and neuter clinic is a great help to our county. By spaying and neutering we are eliminating a lot of animals that would end up being strays that the county would have to do something with. This is a win/win situation.

We appreciate Pat and her family of Apple Barn Auction for letting us conduct the April clinic there as we didn't have a place for it. Sue Craig

Slipping silently into eternity

Almost all of America remained glued to news accounts of events as they unfolded during and after the April 15 Boston Marathon bombing.

News of the victims, officers efforts to capture those responsible, and the shootout with the two brothers charged with the crimes, overshadowed other news events.

And, it was only after the suspect was caught on Friday night that the residents in the Boston area breathed a sigh of relief. But one piece of news that flew under the national news radar was the death of George Beverly Shea. Shea, with his rich, deep voice, and who sang before audiences during Billy

Graham Crusades for more than 60 years, died on April 16 at the age of 104. Shea held the Guinness Book of World Records title for performing before the most people - than 220 million — during his career. He also recorded some 500 vocal solos and 70 albums, and earned a Lifetime Achievement Award from the Grammy Association in 2011, according to an article in USA Today.

Shea was well known on Chicago radio when Graham began using him in his crusades worldwide. He's credited with helping to draw many to the crusades during the early years of Graham's ministry.

But what's truly remarkable about this man characterized as a gentle giant — was his humility and love for Jesus Christ and for people.

It's also worth noting that not one person associated with the Billy Graham Evangelistic Ministry, Shea included, has ever been embroiled, much less accused, of any type of scandal.

In this day and time with TV preachers involved in money schemes and sexual sins, that's truly remarkable.

Also, in a world where the media is roundly accused of reporting nothing but bad news, Shea's death is good news because it give us pause to reflect on a life well lived. Billy Graham's crusades would not have been the same if Shea hadn't performed crowd favorites such as "The Wonder of it All," and "How Great Thou Art." His son said at his father's funeral that the Canadian-born Shea built and visited a simple wooden cabin in Canada because that was the kind of man he was, simple and humble.

Those who heard him sing remember the twinkle in his eye and the warm smile he exhibited while he sang. In a written statement read at the funeral, Graham said of his friend: "I have lost one of the best friends I have ever had, but he and I look forward to seeing each other in heaven relatively soon." I truly believe that George Beverly Shea died the way he would have wanted, by quietly slipping from this world into a place called heaven where Christ will say to him, "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter into the joy of thy rest."

And many thanks, Bro. George, for blessing our lives in using a God-given talent to bringing us closer to the Lord Jesus.

Those of us who are saved look forward to hearing you sing around the throne of grace in heaven.

And your name is ...?

I was telling a story the other day to ...hmmmm, what is his name? I can't think of it.

Anyway, I was telling what's-his-name about the time I... Well, dang, what was the story I was going Sound familiar? I am doing this more and more these days. I hear other people saying they are having the same prob-lem. We can't remember simple words and people's names.

I try very hard not to repeat stories or gossip I've heard because I usually can't remember them or I didn't pay enough attention to the telling to get them right.

Let's face it — most of us get bored with a story before we hear the end of it. Short attention spans plague most of us. That's one of my excuses, any-

It's no wonder I can't finish a story or forget what I was telling in the first place. The reason? Well, I never could tell a short story. For instance, if I try to tell you about my trip from Yosemite to Middleburg, I go off on tangents about the bird that whitewashed my car, about the idiot who almost ran me off the road, how much gas I had in my tank, how much the price of gas was the last time I bought it, and on and on and on. All I really wanted to say was, "I went to the post office in Middleburg this morning." Well, that's one of my best excuses.

Don't expect me to re-

I will recognize your face but your name won't come to me until about two o'clock in the morning and that will keep me awake the rest of the night. If I first met you when we worked together somewhere but I see you at Walmart, it will drive me crazy when I realize I can't remember your name or where I knew you. My excuse has always been that you weren't in your regular pew.

Back in my working days I had to attend many conventions and meetings. I'd see people I hadn't seen for a year and I would forget most of their names. I would pray that they had on their name tags and that the name tags were large to read before I got close to them. I finally came up with a solution to the prob-

Don't be alarmed if the next time I see you, I give you a big smile and say, 'Hello, darlin'." Just chalk it up to a lifetime of forgetfulness and a touch of old age.

The Casey County Hospital Board met on April 9 and heard Chief Financial Officer Rich Hendershot say that for eight months ending Feb. 28, Casey County Hospital, Casey Primary Care, and Casey Family Practice had total assets and liabilities of $31,285,767. Total operating revenue was $11,519,898 with operating costs of $11,173,664 for a net income of $346,234.

The report states that $102,651 has been written off as charity and $21,039 as bad debts.

In addition, Hendershot told board members that the total fund balance is now $6,000,993.

For the month of January, the three facilities had a net operating revenue of $1,553,270, with operating expenses of $1,523,282 for a net income of $29,988. Combined with interest income of $13,715, the net total income was $43,703.

February's report saw a net operating revenue of $1,413,437 and operating expenses of $1,394,477, for a net income of $32,684, of which $13,724 was interest income.

EDA

Liberty-Casey County Economic Development Authority met on April 15 and reviewed financial statements for February and March.

Director Blaine Staat said that the EDA currently has $487,428 on hand.

Also, all loan payments from Chieftain Steel, Bluegreass Shavings, and SnapDolls are current with balances of $625,400, $96,124, and $110,582 remaining, respectively, on the loans to those businesses.

Staat told board members that there's still no word on a $500,000 ARC grant for the new college.

The board also agreed to obtain a debit card from Casey County Bank for EDA transactions

Staat said that at the end of June, both his and Johnnie Beard's terms are expiring.

Casey County Board of Education

Meeting on April 8, State Rep. Terry Mills, D-Lebanon presented Superintendent Linda Hatter with a copy of a legislative resolution recognizing her for 10 years of service to the district. Hatter will be retiring on June 30.

Board members also heard Deena Randolph, Director of District Wide Services, say that the district has $9.3 million in total cash and a General Fund balance of $5.3 million.

Randolph also reported that through March, the district had spent $196,379 on substitutes for certified and classified personnel.

This figure is more than was spent in the prior fiscal year but still well under the $382,000 budgeted for substitutes. Last year, the district spent $187,851 for substitutes.

The board also awarded a mowing contract for Jones Park and Walnut Hill Elementary schools to Kelly Buis, who had the low bid of $410.

In other action, the board:

Heard Hatter say that Steve Davis was hired as a softball coach at Casey County Middle School. The board also accepted the resignation of Carol Price

Addiction recovery clinic returning to Danville BOYLE COUNTY (Danville) – fRefind, an outpatient addiction recovery clinic, is moving its headquarters to Danville, a town its employees consider "home."

The clinic, which treats people with opiate addictions, opened in Danville six years ago. The company now has 12 Kentucky locations and two in Ohio. In 2011, after its growth in Danville spread to four separate offices, the company moved to a larger facility, the former Kentucky Christian Academy in Harrodsburg, to "centralize everything into one space," said Chief Executive Officer Jamie Durham.

But Durham said the company recently purchased property with a building at 805 S. Fourth St. in Danville for $250,000. Durham said the site plan is currently in the architectural design phase and will have to be approved by Frankfort before remodeling begins in October or September of this year.

The company will remain at its Harrodsburg location throughout the duration of the work and plans to make the actual move in September 2014.

SelfRefind has 125 employees and 60 physicians who help treat about 2,700 patients a month. Durham said most patients spend a span of two to three years working with the clinic while taking suboxone to aid in their drug dependency. Durham said employees are excited about the move.

Noel declares for NBA draft, UK says FAYETTE COUNTY (Lexington)

Nerlens Noel will enter the NBA draft and not return to the University of Kentucky for his sophomore season. The announcement was made April 15 by the university on its men's basketball website. The announcement came as no surprise as it had been widely anticipated that Noel would enter the draft despite his season-ending torn ACL.

"I support Nerlens' decision to enter his name in the draft and am excited for him and his future," UK Coach John Calipari said in the university's news release. "The hard work and will to win he showed on the floor this year and the dedication and attitude he has shown in his rehab will only be a reward for him and whatever team drafts him in June.

"I have loved my time at Kentucky, but I feel that I'm ready to take the next step to the NBA," Noel said in the news release. "I've learned so much here at UK and am thankful for Coach (John) Calipari, the staff and my teammates for all of their support. I especially appreciate the Big Blue Nation and all of the support, prayers and well-wishes ve received from them during and decision-making process. I'll always be Noel, an Everett, Mass., native, led the nation in blocks as he averaged 4.4 rejections per game and tallied 106 in 24 games played. Prior to his season-ending knee injury he was the only player standing taller than 6-foot-5 to rank in the top 30 in steals per outing as he had accumulated 50 steals on the year.

He averaged 10.5 points and 9.5 rebounds per game. His rebounds and blocked shots led the Southeastern Conference, while he also ranked among the top-10 players in steals per game, defensive rebounds per game, offensive rebounds per game and minutes played

Noel finished the season ranked second in UK single-season history with 106 blocks. His 50 steals ranked as the fifth most in a single season by a freshman. His .590 field-goal percentage is the ninth-best mark in school history, while his steals per game (2.1) is the seventh-best mark in school history, the news

Naked man appears at boat ramp

WHITLEY COUNTY (Corbin)

According to Corbin police, Larry Osborne of London had been drinking and smoking marijuana when he exposed himself to Constable Ronnie Bowling and other people at the Ky. 312 boat ramp on April

Capt. Coy Wilson said Bowling was patrolling the area on his boat. As Bowling passed the boat dock area, Osborne, 26, allegedly came out of the woods on the bank, completely naked. Bowling contacted Corbin Police for assistance. Wilson, along with officers Wade Mitchell and John Dean responded. Bowling and the officers found Osborne near his vehicle. In the time it took the officers to arof shorts. However, Osborne reportedly left his marijuana pipe laying in plain view. In addition, officers found a small amount of mari-

rive, Wilson said Osborne had put on a pair juana in one of Osborne's pockets and beer in his vehicle. "He was by himself," Osborne said. "He didn't say anything about why he exposed himself. Osborne was charged with indecent exposure, disorderly conduct, public intoxication, possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia and lodged in the Whitley County Detention Center. Wilson noted that all of the charges are misdemeanors.

Man arrested on child abuse charges SCOTT COUNTY (Georgetown)

Less than 12 hours after receiving a 58-day probated sentencing for threatening to "shoot up" Georgetown Middle School, an 18-yearold Scott County High School student was arrested April 16 on a charge of third-degree child abuse, records show.

Taylor Lee Burden of the 500 block of Main Avenue, Georgetown, was arrested by city police at 9:13 p.m. in the Kmart parking A city police report said an officer was responding to a child-abuse complaint in the store's parking lot when he saw a woman chasing a "very young child" around a gray "As the child neared the passenger side door, I observed the passenger sliding door quickly open," the officer said in the report.

He then saw a man reach out, "violently grab the child... then violently jerk the child into the van," the officer said. The officer took the man into custody, then obtained statements from Kmart employees who said the suspect had pulled the child up by her hair. Another witness told the officer the man had said, "I'll give you something to Burden was charged with third-degree criminal abuse of a child under 12 years of age, Scott County Detention Center records show. He remains lodged in the detention center in lieu of $2,000 bond.

Toyota might hire 750, produce new vehicle FAYETTE COUNTY (Lexington)

Toyota is planning an ambitious new project for its flagship Georgetown plant that might see it producing a new vehicle and adding 750 jobs.

The news came April 17 when the Kentucky Economic Development Finance Authority gave preliminary approval to $146.5 million in tax incentives for the project, which is shrouded in mystery. Toyota spokesman Rick Hesterberg declined to comment on the project other than to say, "We continue to look for opportunities to localize production and build where we sell. However, we have nothing to announce at this time.

Katie Smith of the state's Cabinet for Economic Development told the KEDFA board that the project is a vehicle model that is new to the plant, which would produce 50,000 of them annually beginning in fall 2015. She declined to name the vehicle model.

The Georgetown plant "is competing with other Toyota plants for the opportunity to build this new model in North America and incentives are essential for the project to occur in Scott County," Smith said.

The new project will cost $531.2 million, with $326 million of that focused on equipment. The remainder would be for building expansions and improvements, as well as tooling. No new land is being acquired as part of the project.

The 750 jobs to be created include temporary and contract workers. The state documents suggested 570 of the 750 new jobs would be full-time employees. Their average hourly compensation would be $26. That's significantly below the average of $44.12 in compensation paid to existing employees, many of whom have been with the plant since its opening in the 1980s.

The new employees would bring Toyota's full-time employment to 6,739, according to state records.

Beshear signs bill to toughen state child pornography law

JEFFERSON COUNTY (Louisville) Gov. Steve Beshear ceremonially signed House Bill 39, giving law enforcement in Kentucky a valuable tool in fighting crimes involving children and the Internet. on April The measure helps child pornography statutes catch up to current technology, particularly where a perpetrator is using "cloud computing" that allows child pornography images to be viewed but not actually located on a computer's hard drive. "In order to combat child pornography and protect our most vulnerable citizens, it's critical that our laws evolve with technology,' Beshear said in a statement. "This law does that by allowing law enforcement to arrest persons who intentionally view these images, even if they don't physically possess the pic-

House Bill 39 also prohibits registrants on the Sex Offender Registry from intentionally photographing minors without the written consent of the parent, unless the registrant is the parent or guardian, and allows for asset forfeiture in these cases.

In addition, the law gives the Kentucky State Police commissioner administrative subpoena power in very limited cases when a child may be in danger.

We have to be extra vigilant when it comes to keeping the law up to date as technology changes, and nowhere is that more important than in our children's safety,' Rep. Kevin Sinnette, the bill's sponsor, said in a news release from the governor's office. "I sponsored this legislation because I want to make sure that the law is airtight when it comes to prosecuting child pornographers. I hope it proves to be a valuable tool for law enforcement.'

Man indicted for 2011 damages to local church

Staff Writer

A local man has been indicted by a Casey County grand jury for allegedly setting fire to a church, among

Travis Hatter, 23, is accused of second-degree arson in an incident at Walnut Hill Separate Baptist Church between the days of Dec. 12-14, Hatter was also indicted for first-degree criminal mischief when he damaged a door lock on a door. A third count states that Hatter committed thirddegree burglary by breaking into the building.

At the time, Casey County Sheriff's Deputy Chad Weddle said church member Mike Hatter discovered the incident about 10:30 a.m on Dec. 14.

Weddle said that among the items taken were two electric guitars, an amplifier, and microphones. Also, a small safe that contained the church's records was taken.

Some of these items have isn't charged with the theft.

During the course of the investigation, Kentucky State Police Arson Investigator Alex Wesley said that the suspects went down into the basement and used several flammable cleaning agents to start a fire in the hallway that scorched the vinyl tile floor.

However, for whatever reason, materials piled inside the front door — a pulpit chair, secretary's chair, big packages of paper towels, and papers dumped out a garbage can were never ignited, Wesley Mike Hatter said that air conditioner filters that were placed just inside the back door of the basement from where the vandals exited the building — were also set on The damage upstairs was mainly confined to vandalizing the church pews and sound equipment, Mike Hat-

sanctuary. We cut the padding off the pews so it wouldn't get down into the wood," he said, adding that the acid was also poured on the carpet.

Church member Rick Wesley said that the suspects also vandalized what sound equipment they didn't steal by ripping wires off the equipment.

Others indictments include

■ Kay Roberts, 40, of 103 Puncheon Creek Road, Science Hill, is accused of fraudulent use of a credit card, over $500, but less than $10,000. Roberts unlawfully used a credit card to obtain money, goods, or services on Oct. 30-31, 2012, the indictment states.

■ Dakota Tyler Lee Lemons, 18, 1128 East Ky. 70, Liberty, was indicted on a count of receiving stolen property over $500. According to the indictment, Lemons took possession of a Kawasaki dirt bike on March 18. 2013 that he knew to be stolen.

Budget

"There will be some changes in the jail budget," Wright said. "We talked to the jailer about that...but the bottom line won't change." Last year, the fiscal court adopted a $3.7 million budget for the jail.

Occupancy at the jail "is down a little," Wright said.
Casey County Jailer Tommy Miller confirmed Monday the number of inmates at the 279-capacity facility has decreased "slightly over the last couple of months." "The state has and may continue to release prisoners," he said. In January, the state released nearly 1,000 inmates in attempt to save money.

"We house prisoners from all over the state,' Miller said. "So it's affected us a little bit."

Budget breakdown

Within the budget is $1.7 million for the county road fund – up slightly from last fiscal year's $1.6 million.

Much revenue for the upcoming year comes from an insurance premium tax, which is set to bring in $700,000 - a $30,000 increase over last year.

Real estate taxes are expected to yield $320,000, which is a $20,000 jump.

The cost of leadership

The budget allocates slight raises for county officials.

The judge/executive's salary - which is set by the state - is budgeted at $83,342, compared to last year's $81,916. Four magistrates will receive a total of $59,250 - $14,812 each – a roughly $300 increase. The preliminary budget has pay for sheriff's deputies staying the same as last year at $78,000. A $450 raise has been earmarked for the county attorney who will make $20,200 compared to a former salary of $19,750. The county coroner's yearly pay is now set at $8,450 - a$150 increase.

Casey County's jailer's pay - also mandated by the state – will increase to $83,000. Last fiscal year's jailer salary was $81,919. Salaries for the jail staff remains at $1 million.

The housing of Class D prisoners, which accounts for a bulk of the jail's budget, is anticipated to drop from $2.7 to $2.6 million this upcoming year.

Expenditures the road foreman to earn $36,500 in FY 2013-14 a $2,500 boost from last year.

Road workers' salaries will be up slightly in the new budget at $300,000 compared to their most recent annual salary of $295,000.

Planning ahead

Judge Wright said within the FY 2013-14 budget, $1 million – $500,000 from a Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) and $500,000 from the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) – is earmarked toward bringing a college to Liberty.

"It's something we've been working on for years," he said. "It's moving along well. We're still moving forward."

In response to the report, Miller told the state he felt "the number of people that works with the canteen is what the jail financially can support.'

As far as the audit's concerns regarding the canteen's record keeping, Miller said much of that involved a software company they were dealing with.

"We weren't getting the information we needed by a certain time," he said,

The jailer said a new accounting system was installed and that has helped.

I was sitting with my dog on the bridge watching the river race by under us, the birds quiet as the winter had settled in. A grey gloom was in the sky and a chill breeze stirred in the bare branches above us. Suddenly, the sky changed as an enormous blue banner appeared in the heavens. My dog whimpered and cowered at my feet as words began to form in the skies ... "A new update has been downloaded for Earth 1.0. Install now?" I was dumbstruck and confused for a moment...then I had an epiphany... "So THAT'S what the Mayans were talk-

Damien Lawhorn

One man with a chisel and hammer in his hands was diligently working on the massive stone circle in front of him. Two were enjoying the meat on the platter in front of them while bragging about the day's hunt. "I shot the arrow while I was running," said one. "I didn't even use a bow. I got him with my spear," replied the other. The sculptor couldn't take another second of their bickering. Rushing to finish the calendar, his hand slipped and the hammer smashed his thumb. "Ow! I'm done!" he yelled, throwing his tools at the others. "But you didn't finish the part that says and so on," said the bowman. "Do you suppose people will just think the world will end then? I mean really?" I woke up thinking, "So this is what the Mayans were talking about."

Second — Dallas John-

Once there was a young scholar called Mr. Winthrow who lived next door to a musically inclined couple of the name Mayan. This in itself was fine except that the Mayans always practiced their music loudly at night. Mr. Winthrow as their closest neighbor (excluding Ms. Spintry who was deaf) felt that it was his solemn duty to complain every night soon after the music began. He would march over in his nightclothes; knock on the door and after the Mayans answered; launch into a tirade against nightly symphonies. The Mayans would then give him some good reasons for why they must play at night (which never made sense). Lately they had also mentioned they were almost done. "So that's what the Mayans were talking about" he said one day after several silent nights as he read an article about a famous musical couples new symphony 'Sounds of the Night.' Third Connor

McGill Two bearded men sit in a space. Between them burns a flame. Within this flame the two men quietly observe riots break out, explosions scorch the earth, and the horrified cries of humanity. The humans fear for their lives as they know them. This fear consumes them in every aspect.

So within this flame the world burns, yet the two men fret not, whereas they are not men at all in a sense. Gods perhaps? Ageless masters of the universe? Observative constellations?

One laughs as he recalls a clever Mayan scribe's devious prank upon mankind. Through his tears of laughter he exclaims in inhuman baritone, "So that's what the Mayans were talking about!"

pered. "What?" Ava asked.

"You remember when everyone thought the world would end on December 21, 2012?" I asked.

Everyone went insane because the Mayan calendar ended. Why?" Ava re-

"The Mayans right," I choked.

"That is impossible! We're still here aren't we?" Ava said incredulously.

"No, right here in this diary entry, it states: December 21, 2012

Today we will conquer the earth. The humans will never know we have possessed their bodies. They will continue to live their lives as they should. They cannot find out, it would pose a danger to The Plan. This will cause immediate elimination to humans who know of our presence.

"So that's what the Mayans were talking about. They were right," Ava whispered.
"What do we do now?"

"We tell no one, or else we'll face elimination."

Second — Jenna Carman

It was December 21, 2012, the day everyone thought the world was about to end. My best friend and I decided to go to the planetarium for one last look at the beautiful glowing stars above our home planet. After being seated, the show began. One bright, shining ball of gas after another made us gasp at its beauty. Blue, red, green, white, yellow, each star was a magnificent hue. After the first 30 minutes, the display changed to our solar system. After visiting Mercury and Venus, we came to the fascinating planet we call home. Halfway through the show, Earth exploded, on the screen that is. The projector overheated and accidentally gave a display of what people thought would happen. We were evacuated and sent home. "Technically the world did end! My friend told me the next day. "So that's what the Mayans were talking about!" I replied.

Third — Natalie McAn-

"So that's what the Mayans were talking about," I told myself as I walked out of class. Mr. Patterson was lecturing my class today on how the world was not going to end and the Mayans just ran out of room on their calendar.

I went to my locker to meet my two friends Kelsey and Kijanna waiting on me. They both looked very excited about something. "What's going on guys?" I asked.

"Mr. Patterson is in his room passed out!" Kelsey replied very loudly.

"Come on, we'll go show you ... he's still there!" Kijanna said motioning me to follow her.

When we got to Mr. Patterson's room we saw him lying on the floor with a potato near his head. I walked to him and picked up the potato. It said, "that's for the homework."

Running Rebels set new records and break old ones

Shelby Stringer continues to reach new heights, literally, with her stand out pole vault performances for the Casey track and field team. She is currently ranked top in the state.

The junior just set the school record on Apr. 13, clearing 9'6" only to surpass the mark and re-break the record last Thursday. Stringer cleared 10'0" at the Warrior Classic to win the event and set the meet record. The new mark also sent her to the top of the rankings in the state A A

"She's almost got 10'3" so she's going to continue to go up," said Coach Matt Willoughby.

The AA state meet record is currently 10'0", first set in 2003, and with the championship still several weeks out, Stringer has a shot at setting a new state record in addition to her other accomplishments already this year.

"She's got potential to set the state record," Wil-loughby said. "She's got things right as far as what she's capable."

As a whole, Willoughby is pleased with the direction both teams are headed in at this point in the sea-

"I think that we finally got everybody in the right positions," he said. "We just have to work on improving. I share athletes with other (sports) so I don't always have everybody at a meet to do as good as I could, but at the regions they will definitely be there. Things are shaping up pretty well."

West Jessamine

The girls' team finished second out of the nine competing teams at West Jessamine's all-comers meet last Tuesday. The boys' team finished fifth.

The Lady Rebels' strongest finishes came from the field, with Abby Meece earning two first places. She won the discus with a toss of 88'8" and won shot put with a throw of 28'6". 'Coach (Rex) Radar does a great job with the throwers year in and year out and gets them competitive," Willoughby said.

Also picking up firsts in the field were Stringer at the vault and Lakken Miller in the high jump, who cleared 4'10".

On the track, Casey's best finishes were three second places earned by individuals. Miller was second in the 200-meter dash in a time of 28.4. Kelli Wilson also represented the Lady Rebels well in the sprinting events taking second in the 100-meter dash with a time of 13.6.

Kelsey Arthur also finished second in the two mile at 14 minutes.

The Rebels did not have any first place winners but had four second place finishers scoring big points for the team.

Micah Smith led the boys' team with two second places. He cleared 12'0" in the pole vault, a new personal best, and 6'0" earned him a tie for second in the high jump.

"He was upset about his high jump even though he got a (personal best) in pole vault," said Willoughby. "He has the potential to be really great (at vault) with his speed and power."

Alex Bolin ran 23.8 in the 200-meter dash and finished second. Blake Durham broke the five minute barrier in the mile and finished second with 4:56.

Warrior Classic

Smith captured two gold medals with his field performances. He cleared 11'6" in the pole vault and 6'0" in the high jump.

Bolin's 200-meter time dropped even further at the invitational. He was second place with a time of 23.7. "He is kind of liking the

Stringer was the standalone gold medal winner for the Lady Rebels at the Warrior Classic with her

"She'll easily qualify for state this year and do well," Willoughby said. "(Rader) feels like she's getting ready to have a breakthrough."

Tiara Cochran gave several strong performances on the track. She was third in both the 300-meter hurdles and 100-meter hurdles. Her times were 18.0 and 54.8 respectively. She also ran a leg of the 4x100-meter relay team along with Stringer and the Wilson sisters, Kayla and Kelli. The team finished second in a time of 55.0.

Undefeated Lady Rebel tennis dominates in regular season play

Performances continue to shine for the Lady Rebel tennis team. Casey swept Somerset

5-0 on Thursday evening and finished third at the North Laurel Classic Tour-"Physically and mentally it was a very strenuous day," said Coach Tommy Wood on Saturday's tournament. "It's rough when you play that many matches in one day. It was a good experience and I was proud of the way the kids played.'

Časey also claimed their second victory over Mercer County this season on Monday evening. The team is now 11-0.

Somerset

The Lady Briar Jumpers stood little chance against the Lady Rebels on Thursday evening. The teams played a 5-point match. Tylyn Leigh, Haley Owens and Taylor Monday earned the teams singles wins.

In doubles, Madison Lee and Allie Tinsley teamed up to take the number one seed victory while Sara Coffman and Chelsey Lynn won the number two seed.

North Laurel Classic Tournament

Eight competitive teams from eight different regions came together for a long day of play at North Laurel on Saturday. The Lady Rebels finished third "They were all very competitive teams; top teams in the state," said Wood. "It's the best competition we've had this season." Paducah Tilghman won the event while South Oldham was second with Casey behind by only one point to take third. With Leigh unable to attend the match, Owens stepped into Casey's number one position and finished as the singles runnerup in the tournament. Owens won her first

"That's one of the tough-this girl. She hasn't played number two singles all year and I put her up in that group with some good players. If I had to give a most improved player award it would go to her," Wood said.

Rebel tennis team gains confidence with four straight wins last week By Rita "Peat" Harris

The Rebel tennis team

picked up four straight wins last week to bring their record to 9-1 as they head into their final stretch of play prior to the 12th Region Tournament. While the team did experience its first loss a week and a half ago, Coach Phillip Williams thinks nearly beating the defending regional champion, Berea, may have helped his team's confidence.

"We may have gained a little confidence there because Berea is probably going to be a repeat champion," Williams said. "We lost in two tie-breaks. That says a lot for our program and kind of puts momentum going our way."

Mercer County

Casey took three losses to Mercer County last Tuesday evening, but came out on top in six of the matches to win 6-3.

Mercer's one and two seeds topped Rebel seniors Hunter Pierce and Luke Salyers, 8-4 and 8-6 respectively.

Seniors Skyler Wright and Taylor Leigh came out to win the three and four seeds. Trent Rodgers and Justin Underwood closed out singles play with wins for Casey as well.

Wright and Leigh won the number one doubles seed 8-3 while Casey's number three seed also saw victory from Rodgers and Underwood. Pierce and Salyers teamed up in the two seed and lost 8-6.

Somerset

Casey earned an 8-1 triumph over Somerset at home on Thursday eve-

Pierce claimed a major victory in his face off with Somerset's number one seed and won 8-3.

"That's a tremendous win in regards to Hunter and all of our congrats are going toward him," Williams said. "(Somerset's

Pierce's win was only one of Casey's singles successes for the night. Singles play was dominated by the Rebels as they earned all six points.

The one loss for the evening was in the number two doubles seed. Luke Coffman and Austin Harne lost 0-8.

Taylor County

A week and a half after their first win over Taylor County, the Rebels triumphed 7-2.

Pierce, Salyers and Wright took wins in the one, two and three seeds again. Leigh was defeated by Ben Sharp this time in the number four seed, 5-8, after Leigh won their face off the week before.

Rodgers and Underwood both won in the five and six singles seed.

It was previously reported that Underwood lost in the six seed when Casey faced Taylor; however, Underwood remains undefeated in the six seed.

Rodgers previously lost to Taylor's Justin Smith in the five seed; however, he triumphed in a tiebreaker, 9-8 (10-7) in their recent meeting.

Casey 's only other loss to Taylor came in number three doubles when Austin Harne and Luke Coffman fell 1-8. Pierce and Salyers picked up the number two seed victory while Wright and Leigh triumphed in the number one position. (Wright and Leigh) got beat when they played previously," Williams said. 'We're beginning to play as we should and we're getting better."

Pulaski County

In a five-point match at Pulaski County, Casey fought to make a clean sweep and defeat the Maroons 5-0.

Pierce and Salyers represented the Rebels in singles play and both had decisive wins against Pulaski's number one and two seeds.

Doubles play was a little tighter, but Casey came out on top in all three

Number one doubles eam, Leigh and won the initial set 6-4 but Pulaski fought back to win the second set 5-7. Leigh Wright narrowly pulled out the win for the final set when they won 13-11 in a tiebreaker.

Rodgers and Underwood saw a similar pattern in their two seed competition. After winning 6-3, Pulaski triumphed in the second set 4-6. The Rebel team also went into a tiebreaker after the third set score was 7-6, and they won 12-10.

Luke Johnson and Jackson Ponder rounded out the doubles play with an 8-6 win.

The Rebels stay on the road for their final stretch of the season. The team played at Garrard County last night (see next week's paper for full results) and travel to Boyle County on Thursday.

While the air may have been cool, the sunny weather set Casey off to a good start that led to a 5-2 victory over Todd County Central on Saturday.

Casey went up 1-0 in the first inning before Todd held them in the next two innings while earning runs of their own and taking a 2-1 lead.

Casey tied it up in the fourth inning, 2-2, and held their opponent the rest of the game while going on to score three more of their own runs to take the victory.

"(Atwood) pitched a complete game," Hammond said. "I was pretty confident going in that even with our injuries and being short on people, with Alex pitching, we'd be competitive.'

Fresh fruit picking comes 'full circle' for Casey couple

Staff Writer

John Thaman has had a life long association with fresh fruit, having picked strawberries as a 12 year old in Ohio, where he

"Here I am now, picking strawberries 50 years Thaman said, laughing. "I've come full circle.

He and his wife, Peg, have turned that love for strawberries into a thriving enterprise in Casey County called Rainbow Harvest Farm, located off Martin Road in the Creston area.

In addition to growing strawberries, the farm produces blueberries, blackberries, and raspberries.

The Thamans moved to Casey County in 2002 and began farming operations three years later. The farm opened to the public in 2009.

Having worked in computers for 30 years, they were ready for a change.

"We were tired of big city living and wanted to get out in the country. Land in Ohio is exorbitantly priced so we got on the Internet and looked around and got to Kentucky," he said.

They liked what they saw from both the perspective of land prices and the people they met.

"Land was reasonably priced and we bought 10 acres here. We fell in love with the land and we bought it with a handshake and that was what impressed me," John said.

Blueberries

The farm has about 2,000 blueberry bushes on four acres that should yield about 8,000 pounds this summer. And, the blueberries are grown chemical Peg said that the peak growing season begins around the first week of June. Pickers and buyers are welcome but should call first to make sure of the availability of the berries.

"The biggest sector of pickers are parents who bring their kids out. Some of these kids think food comes from McDonald's or Kroger," said Peg.

About one-half of their blueberry crop will be sold to the Russell County School District through the Farm-to-School program. "They actually doubled their order with us from the previous year because they were so pleased with the produce," Peg said. The other half will go to food co-ops, area stores, and farmers' markets. While 8,000 pounds may sound like a lot, the Thamans said that it's taken them years of learning to overcome obstacles to "Before we covered the blueberry bushes with netting, there was a robin parked under every bush. They ate massive amounts of berries," John said, adding they lost 1,100 pounds of berries to the birds two years ago.

Peg said they settled on a variety of blueberries called "blue crop" because they yield bigger and better tasting berries. They also grow a second variety called "jersey" but found that these bushes don't do as well in drier conditions as during last summer's devastating drought.

Strawberries

The couple also grow strawberries but in a way not many people have seen hydroponically.

About 3,000 plants are in a peat-moss ph balanced medium in styrofoam containers with several of these containers mounted on a vertical tower, which takes up a lot less land, about an acre in their case.

"The hydroponic system is on an automatic timer that injects water and nutrients into the plants three times a day," Peg said, adding that since the nutrients are added to the water, there's no need for the plants to pull nutrients from the soil.

"People, especially senior citizens, like to come out and pick because they don't have to bend over to pick the berries. The towers spin so they can get to the other side of the plants without moving. We also have rolling carts where people can sit to get to the lower berries," Peg said.

Strawberry picking season coincides with the blueberry season but John advised pickers or those wanting to purchase berries to call about the availability.

Jams

The farm also makes and sells blueberry, strawberry, and blackberry jams which John said they sell out of each season.

"We make the jams here on the farm and we also have them in a nosugar added format," he said. "But people love our regular and no-sugar jams because they tell us they taste the fruit and not the sugar.''

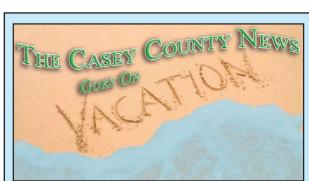

Word of the jams is getting out and from the amount of sales, they must be good.

"The Lighthouse Restaurant in Sulphur Wells is now serving our jams. I told Rodney, the owner, with our jams, he'll be selling a lot more biscuits. Since November, they've bought about 700 jars,' Peg said.

The Thamans can be contacted through their www.rainbowharvestfarm.net, or at (606) 787-9142.

On the nation's 43rd annual Earth Day, the Office of the First Lady, the Energy and Environment Cabinet and the Kentucky Environmental Education Council teamed up Monday to celebrate by highlighting efforts within Kentucky to educate students and citizens about the environment and the value of energy efficiency.

State employees and the public toured the "green" Capitol Education Center in Frankfort; browsed educational booths hosted by numerous state agencies and partners; and recognized schools who focus on energy efficiency.

Originally used as a space to house heating and cooling equipment, the Capitol Education Center has been completely repurposed and "recycled" as a modern learning facility for students and visitors. It is outfitted with a range of interactive and multimedia exhibits to educate visitors about sustainability, geography, tourism and government in Kentucky, according to a state news release.

"This celebration gave the public an opportunity to learn about state government agencies and the role they play in protecting our environment, as well as showcasing Kentucky schools and districts that have made energy efficiency a priority," said First Lady Jane Beshear.

Schools and districts honored at the event included:

The state's 200th ENERGY STAR School is Canevville Elementary in Grayson County. Energy Star designation recognizes schools for their efforts to lower energy costs by improving efficiencies in their buildings. Kenton County Schools and Scott County Schools were honored for being named 2013 ENERGY STAR Partners of the Year by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Kentucky's 2013 Green Ribbon Schools include Locust Trace Agri-Science Farm in Fayette County; Cane Run Elementary in Jefferson County; and, Northern Elementary in Scott County. The Green Ribbon Schools program of the U.S. Department of Education (USDOE) recognizes the highest performing green and healthy schools in the nation. Kentucky's 2013 Green & Healthy Schools (KGHS) include Pikeville High School and West Hardin Middle School. KGHS is a project-based and studentcentered program that empowers students and staff to move their school toward becoming safer, healthier, and more environmentally sustainable.

Energy and Environment Cabinet Secretary Len Peters announced the winner of the cahinet's third annual ' the Earth" middle school photography contest. Andrea Flatt, 14, of Cumberland County Middle School, won with her close-up photo of a snail on a leaf. Peters and Department of Parks Commissioner Elaine Walker presented her a gift card to use at a Kentucky State Resort Park of her choice. You can view Andrea's photo online at http://eec. ky.gov/Pages/earthday.aspx.

Peters also presented the Secretary's Young Environmentalist Award to Ben Swanson, a junior

"It is a joy to honor and enof their environmental steward-ship efforts," Peters said in a news release. "Andrea and Ben demonstrate two of the many ways to be stewards of our environment, whether it is working hard to build trails on a nature preserve or capturing nature through the lens of a camera for others to enjoy.'

Day event included the University of Kentucky's solar-powered car and the Division for Air Quality's new Chevy Volts.

Cadets, community come together at AFJROTC Dining Out

Cadet group expresses thanks for support

By Wade Daffron Staff Writer

It was an opportunity for cadets and community to come together.

On Friday, April 19, the Casey County Air Force Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) hosted their annual Dining Out event.

The ceremony - filled with food, fellowship and military tradition – is a way for the KY-20061st cadet group to "express their gratitude toward the school, community, and veterans of Casey County for...their support," Master Sergeant/Instructor Gary Dining Out is conducted every year as a culmination of the year's events.

Traditionally in the United States Air Force (USAF), Dining Out which civilians may attend and Dining In – for military personnel only - has been practiced since the Last week's function held at the Casey County High School cafeteria featured a catered meal, award presentations and the popular "grog bowl."

The grog bowl - a punch bowl filled with a nefarious looking and tasting concoction - serves as punishment for real or imagined offenses committed by cadets, and is always a crowd favorite.

Casey County's ROTC program is "unique," Emerson said, because there is not a USAF base in Kentucky.

"But we proudly wear the blue," he said, in reference to the USAF uni-

Among those honored at the ceremony were graduating cadets: Danielle Stafford, Steve Bell, Hunter Cleary, Gabrielle McDonald, Brandi Dean, Clyde Allen, Dalton Richards, Jordan Raley, Ashley Grimes, Jennifer Rowe and Alex Atwood.

Consider our schools, which have long been a pioneer in reducing energy costs. In 1992, for example, the National Society of Professional Engineers recognized one of Kentucky's elementary schools for incorporating geothermal heating and cooling in its design. Now, a fourth of our schools have these systems in place, which is one of the highest percentages among the states.

We took the next major leap forward several years ago when we opened the nation's first two schools that generate as much energy as they use over a calendar year. Right behind them are 200 others that have an ENERGY STAR rating, which is awarded to those facilities using 20 to 30 percent less energy than would be expected. Overall, the state now has more than 350 ENERGY STAR buildings, which is a 900 percent jump from School officials are always looking for ways to cut costs, often with the students helping as they learn about energy efficiency. Last year alone, they identified more than $15 million in energy savings, according to the Kentucky Department for themselves, the state is taking other steps to cut energy use. On the road, the Kentucky Department for Environmental Protection now has several plugin hybrids among its fleet, as does the University of Louisville and the local governments for Lexingare also putting significant resources into alternativeenergy research. A few years ago, U of L received the single-largest private donation any public university in the state has ever received to kick-start a new wave of study in this area, while last summer UK opened the Renewable Energy and Energy Storage Research Building. Like many of our elementary schools, it too meets environmental stringent standards, featuring such innovative touches as treated windows that have the same insulating rating

In addition to housing research on such things as biofuels, the facility also hosts a partnership with a leading federal research lab that is looking for ways to improve automotive batteries for hybrid and electric cars. As more and more vehicles rely on an electrical outlet rather than a gas pump, we want to be at the forefront of this cutting-edge field. Outside of government and education, we have seen success in our homes as well when it comes to cutting energy costs. The Kentucky Home Performance Program has helped more than 1,000 homes in the last year alone, which was the fifth-best rate in the nation. Those who take part see their energy costs drop by a fourth on aver-

Another innovative program gaining national attention has re-purposed some of the assembly lines used by our houseboat industry. Instead of building boats, they have built highly efficient homes that cost less than $100,000 and operate on just $1.65 a day. Families moved into the first two early last year.

All of these energy-saving measures have an obvious benefit on the environment, and with Earth Day early this week, we can point to other areas where we're making progress as well. Last month, the state held its 15th annual Commonwealth Cleanup Week, which in 2012 saw more than 28,000 Kentuckians taking part. They collected 65,000 bags of trash then and cleaned about 5,500 miles of highway. Elsewhere, the Kentucky Heritage Land Conservation Fund recently announced that its latest acquisition now puts it in sight of protecting 80,000 irreplaceable acres, while an ongoing waste-tire collection program has removed 21.6 million tires from across the state since 1998. During the recent legislative session, the General Assembly took steps to help these trends along. One new law gives utilities more incentive to use biofuels to generate electricity, while another sets some needed guidelines for vehicles converting to natural gas, something that has become a growing trend because of the fuel's

As these examples show, we have come a long way in a relatively short amount of time when it comes to boosting energy efficiency and reducing our impact on the environment. Further technological advances will undoubtedly lead to even more gains in the near future.
